COMMUNITY RADIO A NATIONAL TREASURE

To some nations a great artist or stateman, even a great institution is considered a national treasure. These countries bestow their highest honors on them and commit themselves in perpetuity to protect and preserve them for the future. Unfortunately, this country has no such tradition. Instead of acknowledging and defending the work of individuals and organizations of excellence which have contributed so much to our intellectual and cultural life, for the past several years many of them have ben put under the most brutal attack by politicians, pundits and the practitioners of fiscal triage especially at the national level. Community radio like WBAI, both as a first amendment principle-in-practice and as an essential part of the democratic dialouge, has become not a national treasure, but an endangered species. The tremendous cuts made by this Republican Congress in community radio support from the corporation for Public Broadcasting means the decimation of this system and the "zero hour" is now nearly at hand.

But there are other factors which are contributing to the demise of this important institution. They range from apathy and ingnorance to the absence of wisdom and a national vision for a truly imformed citizenry. They do not understand the extraordinary value of diverse perspective and alternative views which are essential to the democratic dialouge. The consolidation of the media in fewer and bigger corporate hands has procedeed at a truly alarming rate during these same years. Their mergers and mega deals-the buying and selling of radio and television stations--has been going on like a fire sale. But this fire is out of control at every level--and it is the people who are getting burned. More than ever before, the listener and members of community stations must make their voices heard--that they want to protect and preserved this national treasure in cities like New York and WBAI and in towns and villages all across this country at the most fundamental level, no one else can and will make this committment of financial and political support to this democratic vision except the people. Let their voices be heard from coast to coast.

This summer there will be some very special voices on WBAI as we feature programs on topics such as Frederick Douglas with Ossie Davies, Global Cultures with Marta Moreno Vega, The Battle of the Little Big Horn produced by Raven. A Birthday tribute to Jerry Garcia, and Hiroshima revisited-Today's Prospects for Peace and on August 21 and 22, there will be two full days devoted to the world wide technical and scientic revolution and the question of democracy. In addition, WBAI and the Democracy Now program with Amy Goodman will be providing the kind of in-depth coverage and cutting edge journalism that is part of our tradition during the Democratic and Republican conventions this summer-live from Chicago and San Diego in this presidential election year. We urge you to stay tuned for a summer of dynamic and thoughtfull programming from WBAI as we and all of community radio face the issue of survival.

Please respond as generously as you can to our letters and the special summer fundraiser in August which will feature the kind of extraordinary programming you expect from WBAI.

Without a vision, the people perish...Let your voice be heard in support of community radio and specially WBAI in these difficult and challenging times. We are a treasure.

Very Special Programming from August 6-11

There's a buzz in the halls at WBAI as we plan our August programming. Many WBAI producers will be contributing. Michio Kaku's taking the lead, and will host a two-hour national satellite broadcast Sunday, August 6, the anniversary of Hiroshima, at noon. We hope to add a second national broadcast on Wednesday, the anniversary of the Nagasaki bomb. He's planning a trip to Cambridge to interview fellow physicist, including several who worked on the first bomb, and also expects to interview, live or on tape, some of the world's experts on war and peace, including Dr. Helen Caldicott, Daniel Ellsberg, Paul Warnke, the bomb designer Ted Taylor (whose warnings about nuclear dangers were chronicled in The Curve of Binding Energy), and many more. Kaku, a peace activist, as well as a professor of Physics, wrote To Win A Nuclear War-The Pentagon's Secret War Plans, which drew on once secret government papers to show how close we have come to Armageddon.

Andrew Phillips, host of WBAI's Investigations, will reprise some of the material from his award-winning documentaries, Hiroshima Countdown with Studs Terkel and The Men Who Dropped The Bomb. Included will be an unforgetable interview with Comdr. Paul Tibbets, who flew the Enola Gay, and droped the bomb on Hiroshima. as well as material from (among Others) Wilfred Burchett, the first foreign jornalist to reach Hiroshima;, Chaplin William Downey, who design the core of the NAgasaki bomb and later surveyed the war damage in Japan. Phillips will be doing specials at 9 p.m.

Weaponry's team will bring to the air, during their Tuesday night regular slot and in specials, discussions with Richard Rhodes, author of the Pulitzer-Prize winning history of the development of the atomic bomb, Gar Alperovitz; the author of the provocative book, Atomic Diplomacy: and many others.

Matt Finch and oyhers producers are gathering music, poetry, and drama to present. George Wellington has taped Professor Robert Jay Lifton. Bernard White and Amy Goodman ar lining up guests for Wake Up Call, our morning show. Expect also the leading peace activists of our day to join us on the radio. Listen for a detailed schedule as we get closer to August, and please join us.

THE DOOMS DAY CLOCK of The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientist now is set to seventeen minutes before midnight, reflecting the arms control agreements of the last decade. The clock represents how close we are to destruction, and has been set as close as two minutes to midnight.

THE BATTLE OF THE LITTLE BIG HORN, JUNE 25th, 1876

Two of those Southern Cheyenne women who had been in our camp at the Little Big Horn told of having been on the battlefield soon after the fighting ended They saw Custer lying dead there They had known him in the south While they were looking at him some Sioux men came up and they were about to cut up his body The Cheyenne women, thinking of Me-o-tzi, made signs "He is a relative of ours", but telling nothing more about him The women then pushed the point of a sewing awl into each of his ears, into his head This was done to improved his hearing, as it seemed he had not heard what our chiefs in the South said when he smoked the pipe with them They told him that if afterword he should break that peace promise and should fight the Cheyennes the "Everywhere Spirit surely would cause him to be killed" Kate Big Head as told to Thomas B Marquis in 1927

This summer marks the 120th Anniversary of the Centennial Campaign the Great Sioux War of 1876 President Ulysses S Grant Secretary of the Interior Zachariah Chandler Secretary of War William W Belknapp General Philip Sheridan and General George Crook met in the White House on November 3rd, 1875, to plan the strategy of an agressive war to be launched against the Lakota and Cheyenne "hostiles" away from U S Government control living in the lands they had controlled since the early 19th century The objective of the campaign was to wrest control of the Paha Sapa, "Hills that are Black" that rose up to four thousand feet in the western part of the "Great Sioux Reservation" The Black hills had been "ceded" to the Sioux at the treaty signed in November, 1868 at Fort Laramie They were considered sacred by both the Cheyenne and Lakota The Lakota say a man followed the buffalo from the Paha Sapa into the plains and that was the beginning of their tribe Sitting Bull regarded the Black Hills as a "food pack and therefore the Indians should stick to it" Rich in game, with sheltered valleys and abundant firewood it was ideal for winter camping Blanketed by thick stands of lodge pole pine the hills also offered a fine source of tipi poles The black Hills were the center of the universe for the Lakota and Cheyenne

The discovery of gold in the Black Hills in 1874 had led to the illegal invasion of the area by over twenty five thousand miners by 1876 The whites tried to buy the Black Hills and this splintered the Lakotas and the Cheyenne into three groups The older reservation Indians led by Red Cloud and Spotted Tail wanted to sell the Hills for a fair price other reservation Indians led by Young Man Afraid, feared that giving up the Black Hills would lead to the inevitable loss of the hunting grounds in Montana This process was well under way, the population of the buffalo declining from an estimated fifty million before the arrival of the white man to less than a thousand by 1888 as the wholesale slaughter of the buffalo ensued Finally the free Indians called "hostiles" by the government, led by Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse simply wanted the whites out of their lives and territory for good Sitting Bull said, "He would not sell his land He said he had never been to an agency and was never going in He was no agency Indian" As the U S government began to plan the 1876 campaing the actual number of Lakota and Cheyenne under Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse's leadership numbered 3400 men, women and children, repesenting 480 lodges and about 850 Warriors This was the estimated "enemy" force that the U S military sought to supress

The single event that towers over all other aspects of this one war of the many that had been underway throughout the Americas between the Europeans and the Native peoples since the fifteenth century is the Battle of the Little Big Horn fought from June 25th to June 27th, 1876 This three-day battle, known to many as "Custer's Last Stand" or "The Battle of the Greassy Grass", depending on your point of view, is the single most reproducd event in American history It has inspired countless Holywood films, innumerable dime novels, countless novels and works of non-fiction and has all the properties of a myth similar to Beowulf, The Odyssey of Gilgamesh The initial reaction to Custer's defeat was blunt and sharp President Grant said, "I regard Custer's massacre as a sacrifice of troops, brought on by Custer himself, that is wholly unncessary-wholly unnecessary" But for America the mythological transformation of The Battle of the Little Big Horn began immediately For many Americans, Custer was their golden sacrifice to progress; a martyred symbol of all the great struggles gone by To them, the shinning image of the spotless soldier, a self-made man in the spirit of Horatio Algers or Napoleon, alone on a wilderness hilltop, surrounded by a fiendish foe, resisting to the last, belonged to the public self image of what made America unique

Hollywood has left the most powerful images of these events on our conciousness Warner Brothers' 1941 THEY DIED WITH THEIR BOOTS ON, directed by Raoul Walsh, depicts Custer (played by Errol Flynn) leading the seventh Cavalry knowingly to its doom against the Lakota led by Crazy Horse (Anthony Quinn) The final fight is played against a powerful Max Steiner soundtrack countering "Garry Owen" with a jagged Indian theme Custer draws his sword and falls from a shot, from Crazy Horse's rifle as a charge of warriors rides over him This image of the "Last Stand" is derived from the F Otto Becker copy of John G Fulber's painting, "Custer's Last Fight" This lithograph was copyrighted in 1896 and bistributed in tens of thousands of copies by Anheuser-Busch to bars and saloons around the United States Thus the Custer "Legend" aided Budweiser in becoming a household word This visual imagery is what Raoul Walsh paints on the silver screen in his "Last Stand" scene Opening in November 1941, just days before Pearl Harbor, Wake Island and Bataan, the American public readily identified with the heroic self sacrifice of Custer and the seventh Cavalry that Walsh depicted in his film, a celluloid reflection of the real tragedy the first months of war would bring to the in 1941-1942

In sharp contrast is Arthur Penn's 1970 film, LITTLE BIG MAN, the second highest grossing film of that year Based on Thomas Berger's brilliant 1964 novel, Dustin Hoffman played Jack Crabb, "the oldest living survivor of the Battle of the LIttle Big Horn" Richard Mulligan portrayed Custer as a bloodthirsty, arrogant, opportunistic and finally, stark raving mad Penn used the film to attack the Vietnam War Penn said, "Custer was so infatuated with his capacity to win, so racially assured that he belonged to a superior breed", that he led his men into a hopeless battle and thus made a perfect historical metaphor for the present "Although I am focusing on history", Penn explained, "I believe the film is contemporary because history does repeat itself" Recent cinematic depictions of this event such as the 1991 ABC television production, SON of the MORNING STAR, based on Evan S Connell's 1984 surprised bestseller; Paul Stekler and James Welch highly popular PBS documentary for the AMERICAN EXPERIENCE series, "Last Stand at the Little Big Horn" and the controversial 1996 Turner Network Television production, CRAZY HORSE with Michael Greyeyes as Tashunko Witko (Crazy Horse) are more complicated renditions of the fateful events of the summer of 1876 The commercial success of Kevin Costner's 1990 DANCES WITH WOLVES changed the emphasis Holywood gave events like the clash of the plains Indians with white America Unable to obtain financing from U.S. studios for his depiction of the Lakota as, in the words of one critic "Just average folks", Costner in his directorial debut eventually was able to produce the film with foreign backing Nominated for twelve Academy awards winning seven including Best Picture, DANCES WITH WOLVES altered the politics and aesthetics of cinema concerning the depiction of events like the Battle of the Little Big Horn Recent documentary series like Discovery Channel's How The WEST WAS LOST illustrate this nuanced and sophisticated renditions of the Native American perspective The power of the mythology of these events of 120 years ago along the Little Big Horn continues to penetrate our cultural, political and historical consciousness CIRCLE OF RED NATIONS producer, Raven Silva and Jim Dingeman, PAST AND PRESENT producer will present a finely textured look at the events of June 25th to 27th, 1876 In the month of July The show will feature readings of first hand accounts of Lakota, Cheyenne, Crow, Arikara and Soldier participants in the battle To provide historic insight our guests will include Professor Richard Allan Fox, author of ARCHAEOLOGY, HISTORY AND CUSTER'S LAST BATTLE, James Welch, celebrated novelist and author KILLING CUSTER THE BATTLE OF THE LITTLE BIG HORN AND THE FATE OF THE PLAINS INDIANS and professor Brian Dippie, author of CUSTER'S LAST STAND THE ANATOMY OF AN AMERICAN MYTH So stay tune to WBAI

RADIO IN THE PACIFICA TRADITION.

Democracy now! is the first national election year radio program of its kind This unique program challenges conventional approaches to election coverage and goes beyond campaign rhetoric, party politics, horse race coverage and superficial polls.

DEMOCRACY NOW! provides an in-depth and exciting look at grassroots organizations that are challenging the status quo Listeners hear from fresh and invigorating voices, visionaries from all walks of life activists, progressive journalist, artist, academics, students, seniors and a diversity of citizens who share a commitment to peace, social justice and democracy

DEMOCRACY NOW! asks the tough questions the corporate dominated media won't

- Why are corporations downsizing, laying off a record number of workers, while CEO's salaries and profits skyrocket?
- Why, if free trade is the "model" for the new ecenomy, have jobs become a leading U.S. export?
- Why are so many workers forced to juggle low-paying, temporary jobs to keep their familis afloat?
- Why is the gap between the rich and the poor growing wider?
- And why won't Washington raise the minimum wage?

WHAT DO AMERICANS WANT? DEMOCRACY!

DEMOCRACY NOW! pays particular attention to those who have traditionally been marginalized by the political process women, people of color, urban youth, immigrants, lesbians and gay men, environmentalists, working class people and the unemployed

DEMOCRACY NOW! promises to turn listeners on, energize them, and inspire hope in era when voter apathy is rampant

AUG. 2, 1990: IRAQ FORCES INVADE KUWAIT
AUG. 5, 1990 UN SECURITY COUNCIL PASSES RESOLUTION 661, IMPOSING A TOTAL BOYCOTT AGAINST IRAQ, A DEVASTATING WEAPON WHICH REMAINS IN EFFECT TODAY.

The U.S.'s fifth fleet is based off Bahrain. Saudi Arabia, and Kuwait have been purchasing U.S. weaponry on unprecedented scale, since the war.
The war fragmented the Arab states; but did it end Arab nationalism?
Inside Iraq, the leadership is unchanged while the death toll from sanctions has is beyond half a million under five years old alone.
The UN special weapons commision for Iraq and Washington says Iraq is hidding something. Or is there another motive?
What is now refered to as the Gulf War helped place th U.S. at the head of a new world order:
We watch as pax Americana takes root.
Meanwhile what is to be found at the scene of the battle?.
In this 3hr special, WBAI revisits Kuwait and Iraq to asses that war and the sanctions 6 years later.
WBAI speaks with invited studio guests and hooks up live with.

Kuwait nationals repatriated to their land. We are joined by leading analysts and experts on Iraq who have followed developmentd since the imposition 6 years ago. FREDERICK DOUGLASS AND THE CIVIL WAR

"The whole history of the progress of human liberty shows that all concessions yet made to her august claims, have been born of earnest struggle. The conflict has been exciting, agitating, all absorbing and for the time being, putting all other tumults to silence. It must do this or it does nothing. If there is no struggle there is no progress. Those who profess freedom and yet deprecate agitation are men who want crops without plowing up the ground; they want rain without thunder and lighting. They want the ocean with out the awfull roar of its waters, maybe both moral and physical, but it must be a struggle. Power concedes nothing without a demand. It never did and it never will. Find out just what any people will quietly summit to and you have found out the exact measure of injustice and wrong which will be imposed upon them, and these will continue till they are resisted with either words or blows, or both. The limits of tyrants are prescribed by the endurance of those whom they oppress." Frederick Douglass, "West India Emancipation", speech delivered at Canandaigua, New York, August 4th, 1857. Frederick Douglass towers as one of the great American political, intellectual and moral figures of the nineteen century indeed of Americas history in general. The development and influences on the evolution of this thought in the ant-bellum period and during the Civil War will be the topic we will explore with professor David Blight, author of FREDERICK DOUGLASS' CIVIL WAR: KEEPING FAITH WITH JUBILEE and professor John Blassingame of Yale University Press, THE FREDERICK DOUGLASS PAPERS. As our times reveals the politicized nature of conflicts over history as seen in the ENOLA GAY controversy, the battle over the National History Standards, the battle with Disney Corporation over their proposed theme park in Virginia, so did these similar battles over history enter into the anti-slavery dabate prior to the CIVIL WAR. The meaning over the legacy of the Founding Fathers took distinct forms depending on your point of view.

FREDERICK DOUGLASS

Douglass argued that if the slave steals, "He takes his own, If he kills his master, he imitates only the heros of the revolution." In one of his greatest addresses, the July 5th, 1852, address on the significance of the 4th of July, Douglass placed himself outside the circle of the post-revolutionary generation's principal rhetoric. We will play that speech in its entirety and use it as a bridge into indepth investigation of nine pressing issues of our own times that are taking place, the arson of over thirty African American places of worship that in a political environment akin to what Douglass experienced after the Civil War as the first reconstruction collapsed under a massive onslaught. The total dismantling of the limited reforms of the "Second Reconstruction", of the sixties is starkly exhibited in the "Supposedly" random nature of these church burnings. Pastors of these churches will be our guests.

OPEN THE DOOR

At times my soul cries out like he howling winds that blow up firts avenue.
The winds that blow through the streets of El Barrio carrying the sounds of the streets for endless miles.
"Ma open the door
Ma! Ma!
Abre la puerta!
Ma!"

It seems like someone is always locked out in El Barrio.
Come to think of it
El Barrio is locked out of the rest of the city,
and the people here are locked out of their homes.
And I,
I am locked out of them.

My daughter has her keys.
I make sure of that.
She is never one of those kids screaming up through the Latin Intercome System.
Ma! Open the door!
Ma! Open the door!

There is this kid down the hall
who bangs on his door for hours at least once a week.
I guess his mother locks him out whenever he does something wrong or stays out past his curfew.
He bangs for hours screaming
"Open the door Ma
Open the door."
My daughter has her keys.
I make sure of that.

Ever since I came to America
I've lived among Latinos.
Back then they were calling themselves Hispanics.
That's okay, 'cause back then blacks were calling themselves black.

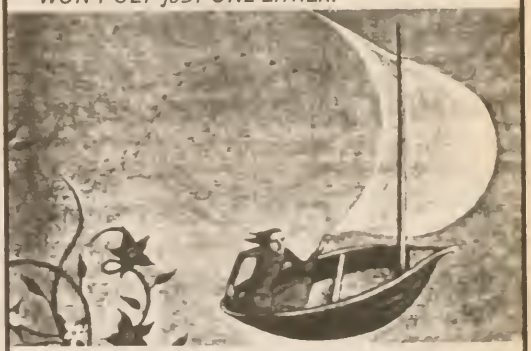
"ASK THE SHAH OF BLAH FOR A STORY, AND YOU WON'T GET ANY OLD STORY; AND YOU WON'T GET JUST ONE EITHER."



There's a whole bag of stories packed into this presentation by singer songwriter Dave Hall in this special July 20th show of Arab Voice, Crescent Rising.
Tune in for "HAROUN AND THE SEA STORIES" a special children's feature on WBAI.
Haroun and the sea stories is a roller coaster adventure novel by the infamous teller of tales, Salman Rushdie.
Produced by Ryme Katkhouda, Dave Hall and B. Nimri Aziz.

Not African-American, African-Caribbean,
African-whatever.
Almost everyone talks to to me in Spanish first after a thousand "I don't speak Spanish"
they finnally believe that I am not Puerto Rican.
Then they tell methat I look Spanish,
they say it like I should be honored.
Like the woman in the library who said that I could pass.
Pass for what and why I don't bother to ask.

Am I to pass for someone who is locked out of the nation,
locked out of the city,
and on occasion locked out of her home?
I like hearing these sounds of El Barrio,
the smells of roast pork and cigarettes
are not locked out.
They escape other people's apartments,
through venting systems and cracked,
open windows
and enter mine.
Hearing everything not understanding much.
I like being part of El Barrio,
and at the same time not being part of it.
it's like being locked out,
except
I call it privacy.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL LEO CAWLEY RETROSPECTIVE

Five years have passed since the death of Leo Cawley from the effects of radical treatment of his bone marrow cancer. For the six years he did a program here, he had, and knew that he had, multiple myeloma probably resulting from the agent orange to which he had been exposed during his tour of duty as a U.S. Marine in Viet-Nam

That program "Fearful Symmetry", explore the connects and disconnects between politics and economics, as well as the culture and history of this city and republic. Tonight, we will hear a sampling from those programs both educational and satisfying. Tune in tonight and hear Leo again or be introduced to an inspiring, broadcaster.

New York, N.Y. 10018

Dear Mario,

I am pleased to address myself to you, in order to express our special thanks for your valuable support in organizing events on Guatemala last week. Those events were very good, particular the one at the New School for Social Research. I also believe that your radio interview was very positive for informing about Guatemala struggle. This is a proper moment for initiating a strong movement for reorganizing solidarity with the people of Guatemala. After more than 40 years of repression and more than 30 years of internal armed conflict, Guatemala is coming to a historic crossroads. The "Firm and Lasting Peace". Agreement finally seems feasible within a one year term, and its accomplishments will certainly provide the basis for a profound transformation of Guatemalan state and society. We all know that the struggle will not end there; it will be just the begining of a new stage, in which the large majority of the Guatemalan people will play a fundamental role

I hope to stay in close touch in the near future.

UNION SUMMER RADIO SHOW

The AFL-CIO'S "Union Summer" labor organizining drive will will becovered in depth by WBAI Pasifica Radio's "Union Summer Radio Show". The program will be produced in the studios of WBAI and sent on the satellite for national distribution. It will be aired in New York City area on mondays from 2-3pm begining July 1st. The Union Summer Radio Station will be produced by WBAI'S veteran labor correspondents Mimi Rosenberg and Ken Nash, host of WBAI'S "Building Bridges: Your community and labor report".

"The Union Summer Radio Show" will chronicle the labor movements first major national organizing drive in over 50 years. The campaign was inspired by the 1964 Freedom Summer movement which mobilized thousands of young people from across the nation to fight for civil rights. Union Summer will send 1,000 workers and college students into communities around the nation to rally support for workplace rights and social justice for hundreds of thousands of unorganized workers. The AFL-CIO is spending millions of dollars on this campaing. While this is a national campaing, major resources will be focused on organizing the south, a dream which has always eluded organized labor. This is a major, high profile organizing drive whose success would beging momentum toward the rebuilding of the labor movement.

As usual mainstream news coverage of this campaing will be inadequate. there are no weekly national tv or radio shows covering the labor beat. WBAI'S "Union Summer Radio Show" would begin to fill that gap following the organizing drive on a weekly basis interviewing AFL-CIO official,organizers in the field, rank and file workers and outside experts. It will be a vehicle for linking a broad based national audience. Given renewed interest in the union movement, it is hoped that numerous independent and college stations will sign on, in addition to other Pacifica affiliates.

OUR AMERICAS: THE WEEKLY REPORT ON LATIN AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN

FRIDAY, JULY 19 5:00P.M.-6:00P.M.

Seveteen years ago today, the Sandinista Front for National Liberation (FSLN) marched into downtown Managua triumphant, after toppling the U.S. backed dictatorship/dynasty of Anastasio Somoza. While bringing hope to millions of Nicaraguans, this historic event also sparked a ten year war waged by the United States against the FSLM that eventually led to the electoral loss of President Daniel Ortega in February 1990. Six years later, Nicaraguans are in the throes of yet another national election. The actors have changed slightly, the social conditions in the country have worsened, making these elections a major turning point in the history of modern Nicaragua. In this special edition of OUR AMERICAS, we will have an in-depth look at contemporary Nicaragua, feauring reports from the ground on the election campaign, a look at the major candidates and a review of United States meddling in past (and present) electoral campaings. Co-produced with Bayardo Gonzales, just returned from a visit to Nicaragua. Plus, the latest news and information from the Hemisphere.

SUNDAY AUGUST 11, 1:00 A.M.

Your host reveals his latest plan to achieve financial adequacy: he has invested in futures in a sweat factory. If the sweat supply goes down during August, promting people to buy bottled sweat at a high price, he stands to make nearly half of Donald Trump's dily lunch money. The Deadly Cult of the Tocks Tap is still doing nasty things, but they're too dirty to even tell you about! In preparation for the upcoming Feast of the Assumption, Pope Weasepenis XVI prepares his basilica for the sacred ritual of the Mud Wrestling Blessed Virgins. Besides having to mix up the mud himself, using his own brand of patented holy water, the peculiar Pontiff complains that ticket scalpers are skimming most of the profits. Asked why he continues to perform such sub-Papal duties he mumbles something about getting to check the virgins for authenticity.
